LAW Poll reveals positive statistics about views on gay family life

A new YouGov poll of over 4,000 people for the University of Lancaster has found that 70 per cent of people consider a same-sex couple in a civil partnership with children as a family, and 47 per cent of people consider a same-sex couple in a civil partnership to be a family.

Sam Dick, Stonewall Head of Policy, said: "We welcome the findings of this new polling, which shows the reality and diversity of 21st century family life."
